If you have a GPS in your car, the coordinates are:

N43 degrees, 26.318; E 11 degrees, 20.944

You should consult your map of Italy and get on the major highway (A-1).

- From the north, head towards Florence (Firenze). When you reach Florence (no need to enter the city proper) you will look for the signs for the Raccordo to Siena (SI-FI). This is also a major highway and is fairly well marked. Travel south for about 45 minutes, then take the exit marked Siena Nord. At the end of the exit will be the local road SS222. Turn left and proceed AWAY from the city of Siena.
- From the south Take A-1 North to Sinalunga, exit and then follow the signs for Siena. At Siena, skirt the city by following signs for Castellina in Chianti along route SS222.

From either North or South you will find yourself driving on SS222. After a short distance (1 km?) along SS222 you will see a right turn marked with MANY signs, one of which should say Vagliagli, another will say Dievole. This is the Chianti road that runs right through the heart of the vineyards. It is a beautiful, though small and winding road. You will need to follow this for 15-20 minutes toward the little village of Vagliagli.

Drive into the town of Vagliagli but just before you enter the piazza with the bar, keep right and continue around the curve. It will take you past the Aiola winery. Stay on this road. It will soon turn to dirt. Keep going past the Terra Bianca winery (on your left). Soon you will see a brown sign for San Fedele. Keep going until you see it – a large yellow edifice – up on the hill in front of you. Before you pass it, there will be a turnoff on your left with a big blue arrow and another sign for San Fedele. Take this left and drive up to the gates. Ring the bell if the gates aren't open. The gates open out, so don't pull your car up too close to them.

Once inside, park on the left in the small lot or on the small lane. If you get lost, call:
